With the rapid development of our society, social skills have become increasingly important in college students' life. As far as I am concerned, establishing good interpersonal relationships is conducive to the development of college students.

The reasons why developing social skills can be essential to us are as follows. To begin with, social skills help us acquire useful information. The purpose of participating in social activities is not only to complete something but also to make us feel delightful. In addition, social skills contribute to our academic progress. Sometimes, our goals cannot be achieved only by ourselves. There is no doubt that effective social activities pave the way for our success.

In a word, social skills play a significant role in the development of college students. It is advisable to cultivate our social skills so that we can better adapt to the society.

Part IV Translation*参考译文：

Start of Spring means the beginning of spring in the Chinese lunar calendar. After the Start of Spring, the days get longer and the weather gets warmer: everything starts to recover and the earth is full of life. It is often said that "a year's plan begins in spring". Farmers start planting seeds at this time to lay the foundation for the whole year's harvest. As early as 3,000 years ago, Chinese people began to celebrate the Start of Spring on this day. Welcoming spring has been an important folk custom for hundreds of years. In the spring days, people often go out to play and enjoy the beautiful scenery in spring.
